When a person stands, sleeps, dies, is born, receives a.Q: Adding custom fields to the node edit form in Drupal 7 I want to add a custom field to the node edit form. This custom field is to be used as an id for a custom entity. I am able to make this work in Drupal 6 using the Form API for adding a custom field to the content type. For example, I have the following code: `$form['field_custom_1'] = array( '#type' => 'textfield', '#title' => '', '#default_value' => '', '#size' => '60', '#maxlength' => '64', );` However, the form elements that are added to the node edit form are given by the field name in the `form_alter()` method, so, the result looks like this: What I want to add is a solution that allows me to add this custom field as the default one (not as a form element in the node edit form). A: You should be able to create a new `#field_name` with the right attributes using `hook_form_alter()`. See this example: `function custom_form_alter(&$form, &$form_state, $form_id) { // Add your new field as a hidden field. if ($form_id == 'node_form' && $form_state['node']->type == 'type_of_node_you_`
